A Princeps Alphabeti litera, quòd ex ipsâ oris aperturâ cum leni ſpiritu ſponte ſuâ prodeat: unde factum, ut in omnibus omnium gentium Alphabetis, quæ hactenus videre contigit, ordinem literarum ducat; excepto uno Æthiopico ſive Abyſſino, in quo mira (quod ad ordinem ſpectat) Elementorum confuſio. Hinc fortean & Angli ſuis Nominibus Articuli loco præponunt voculam a; quâ ſcil. aperitur primùm os, quò facilior ſit pronunciatio; v. g. a Man, a Book, a Horſe: quæ res neq; Græcis ignota, qui id aliquando κα]ὰ πρόθεσιν tentârunt; uti σάχυς, ἄσαχυς· ἀπάεργος, ἀπάεργος. A, a. Græcè, A, α. Heb. א. Anglicè, A, a. Vocalium meritò prima, quòd ſit ſoni ſimpliciſſimi ac facillimæ pronunciationis; quamobrem & Pathach Hebræorum Magiſtris dicitur iſthæc Vocalis, q. d. ipſa oris apertio: quum cæteræ vocales loquentium fauces vel in arctum conſtringant; ut E, I. vel colligant in rotundum; ut O, V. unde & ipſis iidem Magiſtri congrua indidêre vocabula, de quibus vide ſuo loco. Reſpondent itaq; noſtræ a cùm litera א, (Aleph) tum vocalis Pathach, ſive Gallorum more pronuncies Kamets, quam antiquiores Grammatici Pathach majorem indigitant; quæ ſonat ferè au & propiùs accedit ad o: quod nec Latini reſpuunt, ut caupo copo ex Gr. κάπηλος. Figuram ſuam A a, uti pleræque omnes Latinorum literæ, Græcis acceptam refert: quod in majuſculis magis eſt conſpicuum; nam minuſculæ aliquanto longiùs recedunt. Nomen autem, ſicuti & reliquæ, ſortita eſt à ſono ſive nudâ pronunciatione, in hunc modum ſcil. a, be, ce. quod vel ex ipſo nomine hinc efficto patet, Abecedarius. Enimverò Græci ſua Literarum nomina ab Hebræis mutuati ſunt, mediante Chaldæorum dialecto; & hæc quidem ſunt ſignificativa utplurimùm. Sic A ipſis dicitur Ἄλφα, Heb. אלף, Aleph. Chald. אלפא, Alpha: quod & bovem & ducem ſignificat; nim. quòd hæc Litera caput bovinum apicibus ſuis, tanquam cornibus, repræſentet, & in ſerie Elementari principem obtineat locum. Porrò A præpoſita aliis vocalibus tres conſtituit diphthongos, Æ, AI, AV; ut æs, aio, aurum: quomodo Græcè tres itidem ſunt, αι, αυ, & impropria α, cujus loco ſucceſſit æ, ità tamen ut univerſa ferè in αι ſui etiam juris fecerit; ut δαίμων dæmon, αἰὼν ævum, &c. prout etiam vice verſâ Cæſar Græcis Καῖσαρ dicitur, &c. Sanè in Dativis I^æ pro α ſive η (quod ex Doriſmo fit α) conſtanter ponitur æ; ut Αἰνεία Æneæ, φήμη Dor. φάμα famæ, &c. Nec immeritò æ Latina utriuſq; diphthongi Græcæ vicem ſuſtinet, quum αι & α hoc tantùm differant, quòd altera habeat [ι] adſcriptum, altera ſubſcriptum. At ai rarenter in Latinis dictionibus viſitur; aio, Caius, &c. & videtur potius eſſe ſynæreſis quàm diphthongus; quod, ſi Græcanicè ſcripſeris, liquidò parebit, ſic; ἀΐω, Γάϊος. Nim. ut ab ὄΐω ipſi Græci faciunt ὄιω· ita ab ἀΐω Latini aio. Videſis Aio. A in Comitialibus ſuffragiorum tabellis vim Antiquandi, in Judiciariis vim Abſolvendi obtinuit; ſays Briſſonius: that is, In paſſing of Bills in Parliament they made uſe of two tables, in the one whereof was written, U, R. id eſt, Uti rogas, for thoſe that gave their aſſent; and in the other, A, id eſt, Antiquo, for diſſenters. Again for Inditements and tryals at Law, A was a note of Abſolution and Acquital; whence Tully calls it Literam ſalutarem; as C. was for Condemnation, which is therefore call'd by him Litera triſtis. § Of other Abbreviatures whatever ſee in the beginning a Treatiſe of them by themſelves.

A Particula in comp. privativa, ex a priv. Græcorum; ut amens, Insensible without wit or understanding foolish, mad; mihi malis à præp. Lat. à & mens deducere, sicut à de præp. & mens fit demens, codem ferè sensu: sic avius & devius. Vid. Amens. Verùm quod eras monendus, a priv. in multis obtinet vocibus Græcis, Latinis dudum civitate donatis; cujusmodi sunt azymus, anonymus, &c.

A, AB, ABS, præp. cum Abl. à, ab, abs. ¶. From: (after a passive) By; which may also be expreſs by a Dative: Of, out of, from near; after, next after; for, on the side; at, in, through; since, ever since; towards, against; as to, as for, in comparison of, beside: And it implies Offices. Hæc præp. fluxit ex Græcâ Apostrophum passâ, versâ tenui sive aspiratâ in mediam b; ἀπ', ἀφ', ab; sic ἀπ', ἀφ', ab; ἀπ' ἀφ' ab. Inde addito s in fine vocis, ex ab, fit abs; similiter ex ob, obs; (ut obstrudo) & ex sub, subs; (ut subseco, subigo, ad instar sucus, subis, à cado.) Rursus Euphoniæ gratiâ in comp. interdum b deperditâ, relinquitur duntaxat, as, os, sus, pro abs, obs, subs; ut asporto, ostendo, sustineo. Postremò ex ab fit à, cum in appositione tum in comp. uti ex ob fit interdum in comp. o; ut amito; & ex sub, su; ut sufficio ex su (i. e. sub) & facio. Sed & aliud est, a, ex (nam ita scriptum apud antiquos) attrahit similiter s; (nam æ ex pro as ex dicitur) & deposità finali literâ similiter evasit in e, uti ex fama, ab factum à. ✠ Aliter factum ex Ano vel ab, longè tamen quantitatis est, sive ex propriâ indole præpositionum, quæ in a terminata producunt a; ut contra, extra, &c. sive quòd sit vocula monosyllaba, quales ferè produtæ leguntur; ut à ab, me, te, se, à, ti, ei, à brevibus traductæ; morâ aliquâ temporis indulsit, ne exanclarent. ✠ A, ab, abs, are all the same præp. only A is us'd before consonants; AB before vowels, and sometimes before l, r, s, h, & q; as ab Româ, Liv. ab Jove, Virg. ab sole ortus, Liv. and other consonants sometimes; as ab domo, Cic. ab nobilitate, Liv. and ABS before t, c, q; as abs quivis homine, and sometimes r, as abs re, i. frustra. ✠ Varias habet ac pene contrarias significationes, quod & plerisque aliis præp. usu venit; præsertim loci & temporis; item causæ efficientis sive perfectæ agentis, causæ movendi seu impulsivæ, objecti, subjecti, partis affectæ, &c. atq; adeo variarum præp. (quod & reliquis solenne est) vices una sustinet, viz. pro, ad, apud, per, ex, de, propter, ob, pro, contra, adversus, erga, præ, &c. simul & officia & omnia ferè indicat, & alias peculiares locutiones pariunt. I. A, ab, when they signify the Place, denote 1. Terminum à quo, the term of place from whence any thing moves; as Redeo à villâ, ab agro. Venio ab urbe, From or out of the Country, City. 2. Proximitatem loci, nearness of place; as A theatro venit, From near the theatre; from some place hard by. Hence prope near, is sometime joyn'd with it; as Tam prope ab domo, Cic. So nigh from home or to home. Ab exule prope esse, Tac. Not far from being banish'd. 3. Order of place, for post next after; A rege secundus, Next after the King. Dulcissimum ab hominis ore linum lac, Plin. Camels milk next after, or next to, a woman's is the sweetest. 4. Distantiam, distance of place; as A millibus passuum quindecim, Fifteen miles off. 5. With the Abl. of the person, it signifies his house; as A Judice venio, From the Judges house, or from the Judges. A me nescio quis exit, Ter. Out of my house, Otherwise parting; as Ità discedo ab illo, Ter. I depart from him, or go out of his company. 6. On the side, à parte; as A parte Aquilonis, On the North side. Ab omni parte, Suet. On all hands, on every side. Which word parte is oftentimes left out; as A vento, Plin. On the wind side. A dextrâ, On the right hand. Ab lævâ, On the left hand, Plin. ✠ So of persons. Ab Romanis tubæ cornuq; cecinerunt, On the Romans side. ✠ Thus with sum, fio, dico, facio, ago, &c. 'tis us'd for pro; as A senatu stat, He is for the Senate, on the Senates side. Dicere ab reo, To plead for the defendant, in his behalf. Hoc totum est à me, All this makes for me. A nobis facit, It maketh for us. A me sentit, Plin. He is of my opinion. 7. 'Tis used for at, on, with; as A primo, Ter. Cic. At the first. A principio, ab initio, Ter. Cic. At the beginning. A tergo, At's back. A contrariis aure instillare, Plin. At the contrary ear. Ab extremo orsi, Liv. At the uttermost point. A potu prandium auspicari, Plin. With drink. A caudâ de ovo exire, With the tail forward. A puppi religatus, Cic. Tyed fast at the poop. A limine salutare, Sen. Ab ostio audivi, At the door. 8. Lastly, for in; as A vii amicum salutare, in the street; and through, per; as A transenna turdus limbicum petit, Plin. Through the grate or noose of the pit-fall; and for ante and pone both; A fronte atq; à tergo, Before one's face, and behind one's back. II. When they signifie Time, 1. From, since, ever since; as Cujus à morte hic tertius est annus, Since whose death, i. 'tis three years ago since he dyed. Ab illo tempore, Cic. Vir. Ever since that time. Ab auroræ, Plin. Ever since morning. A primâ luce, Cæs. From day-break. A teneris, Virg. Ever since we were little ones. 2. For post after, straight after, presently after; as A jentaculo, After breakfast. A partu, i, post partum. Ab re divinâ, Plin. After divine service. A mediâ nocte, After midnight. ✠ Upon, as Extempore, quàm à curâ præfectior, Suet. Upon premeditation. This of Time may be explained by quum; as A parvo te novi, i. cùm parvus eras, When thou was a little one. Sometimes by quamdiu; as A Liberis non rubere, As long as he shall have children. ✠ In both these sign. of place, and time, à ab is often opposed to ad, as è ex is to in; as Ab Scævâ ad lævam, Plin. From age to age. ✠ Usually with usque; as Ab ovo usq; ad mala, Hor. From the beginning to the end. A mane usq; ad vesperam, From morning till night. A cœpto ad calcem usque, Plin. From top to toe; which in Cicero is Ab imis unguibus usq; ad verticem summum. A Gaditano usq; ad Gangem, Juv. From one end of the world to the other. Usq; is also joyn'd to à alone; as Usq; à Capitolio, Cic. Juvc. all along from the capitol. Usq; ab auroræ, Plin. Ever since morning. III. A, ab, of the agent or doer, after a passive, by; Victus est à Scipione, i. vicit eum Scipio. ✠ So with Verbs Neuters; as Ab aliquo perire, Plin. interire, Cic. To be kill'd by one. A sole maturescere, To be ripened by the Sun. So A Milone reus, i. accusatus, Impleaded by Milo. ✠ So in payments of money with a verb Active, to do it by proxy; so solvere, dare, numerare, repræsentare, suppeditare pecuniam ab aliquo, To return money by bill of exchange, or to receive money of the Banker and pay it: as Viaticum ut dem à trapezitâ tibi, Plaut. By the Bankers hands. A quæstore numeravit, Cic. scil. acceptam. Ut tibi quod debet ab Egnatio solvat, Cic. ✠ So A filio aut certo hærede legare pecuniam, Money to be paid by the Son, or such an Heir. ✠ Though ab aliquo possidere; itinere, actu, re quapiam ab aliquo uti; ab aliquo aquam ducere, bear a quite different sence: To possess a thing, to go through ones ground, &c. in despite of the owner, against his will, by force or fraud. ✠ On the other hand, to do any thing à se sign. of himself; A se aliquid facere; as A me solvam. A se cantat, i. per se. So à Duumviro, By order or leave of the Duumvir. But Ab aliquo describere, i. ex, out of another. ✠ And in another sence 'tis taken also for per; as A me pudica est, She is a maid for me. IV. A, ab, of the Object, is taken for erga, towards; as Ab infantibus clementissimus, Cic. Most merciful towards infants; and for contra, adversus; as Defendo à frigore Myrtos, Virg. Against the cold. So A periculo defendere, Cic. A propinquis opem ferre clienti, Gell. i. adversus propinquos. V. A, ab, of the Subject, is taken for quod attinet ad, quantum ad, quoad, as for, as to; (like the Gr. κατὰ secundùm;) as A pecuniâ valere, i. ad pecuniam quod attinet, Gell. A moribus, à viribus, à fortunâ probare militem, Cæs. According to, in respect of. Ab ingenio improbus & timidus, Of an ill disposition. Instructus à Philosophiâ, Cic. Learned as to Philosophy. Ineptus à labore, Cic. Tantum potuit à facundiâ, Ter. As to eloquence. ✠ So Paratus ab exercitu, & ab equitatu promptissimus, Cic. As to army, horse. Erat tum ab oratoribus solitudo quædam in foro, Cic. As to Orators. A cæteris silentium fuit, Cic. As to the rest. ✠ And for ex of; as Præcavere liberos ab aliquo. VI. A, ab, of the part affected, at; as Doleo ab animo, I am grieved at my heart, my heart akes to think on't, Doleo ab oculis, It grieves me to see it. Ab animo perit, Plin. His heart's gone. VII. A, ab, of the moving cause, for ob, propter, præ, For, by reason of, out of; as Ab amore scribere, Cic. Out of love, for very love. Tempus & à nostris exige tristi malis, Ov. By reason of my misfortunes. VIII. A, ab, of Country or Relation, for de of; as A Placentiâ, à Puteolis, i. e. Placentinus, Puteolanus, Cæs. A gente Augustâ, Of Augustus his family. Ab Andriâ est ancilla hæc, Ter. Belongs to her. Esne à Milite? Plin. Do you belong to the Souldier? A Platone & Aristotele homines, Cic. i. Platonici. IX. A, ab, sign. offices and places of imployment, about Princes and great persons, or the Publick, for, or, at; as Ab epistolis, A Secretary or Clerk of the Signet, &c. Ab non nullis, A Tutor. i. Mini-

B, b. Gr. Β, β, ϐ. Heb. ב. Angl. B, b. In ſerie elementari ſuo quodam jure ſecundas tenet; quòd, ut A aperit os, ita B claudat rurſus: quod & ipſa figura clarè oſtendit, compreſſis utrinq; veluti labiis. Hoc quidem Græcè & Latinè ſit. Apud Hebræos alia eſt ratio. Nempe illi בית Beth. i. domum vocant, cujus vides in ipſâ literæ ſtructurâ baſin ſive fundamentum, parietem & tectum, quale illorum erat, planum; quippe in quo inambulabant. Oſtium præſtat exituræ voci oppoſiti lateris apertura. Habes domum. Quæris dominum? Junge modò has duas literas אב. Quid A B ſonat? Patrem. Quid Aleph Beth? Principem domûs. Non debebant ſejungi hæ duæ literæ, quarum altera ſermonis Patulcia & proma, altera Cluſia & conda; utraq; parens & princeps. Nam quo privilegio gaudet A inter Vocales, id ſibi juris vendicat B apud Mutas. Porrò Chaldæi emphaticè, ut ſolent, appellant ביתא Betha. Hinc nomen Græcanicum Βῆτα, non, uti ſomniârunt Grammatici, à pecudum voce Βῆ βῆ. Dixi mutam eſſe. Harum trinus eſt ordo; Labialium; π, β, φ. Palatinarum; κ, γ, χ. & Dentalium; τ, δ, θ. Nempe Muſas numero æquant. Latinæ non reſpondent examuſſim. Heic ſuperant, alibi deficiunt. Pro π, β, φ. habemus nos p, b, f & v conſonam; præter illam, quam à Græcis accepimus, ph. Rogas, quo pacto id acciderit? Dicam. Habet π p tenuis ſuam aſpiratam φ ph, cui æquivalet f, ut φήμη, Dor. φάμα, fama. Habet & b media ſuam v. Quid quòd ipſi Græci dudum non aliter pronunciârint β quàm nos v; v.g. Alpha, Vita? quæ res, renaſcentibus jam literis, exercuit aliquando magna ingenia. Appello Stephanum Epiſcopum Wintonienſem & Johannem Checum, quorum extant Scripta. Nata hinc duplex poteſtas, figura duplex; quarum tamen uſus eſſet ferè promiſcuus. Nam ut Græci pro Varro dixere Βάῤῥων pro Virgilius Βιργίλιος· ità viciſſim Latini à βιοτὴ vita, &c. dixerunt. Etiam in vocibus aliquot Latinis manſit hæc ſoni ſive vicinitas ſive indifferentia, ut & ſebum & ſevum diceretur. Tranſit ſimiliter in alias cognatas B; ut à ſcribo, ſcriptum; à rubeo, rufus; à glubo, gluma. Et illæ viciſſim in hanc; ut Poplicola & Publicola, (ſicut à populus, Publius & publicus efficta ſunt pro Poplius & poplicus.) ab ἄμφω, ambo; à ſcamnum, ſcabellum. Etenim m utut liquidam cum mutâ b conſonare apprimè paret, quòd & proboſcis Græcè dicitur & Latiniùs promuſcis. De cæteris non loquor. Duntaxat in alterius ordinis mediâ d quis non idem obſervet obtigiſſe? Nempe ut à des, bes; à duellum, bellum; à δίς (ſive illud fuerit duis) bis factum eſt: ſic contrà à βυνὸς Æol. δυνὸς, unde dunum, Angl. a down; ab uber, an udder; niſi utrumq; ἀμέσως, quod eſt vero quidem ſimilius, ab ϑῆαρ. Enimverò b præpoſitionum ab, ob, ſub variè mutatur in p, f, m, item in c, g, & interdum r; quod ſuis locis monere ſatis erit. Nec id adeò mirum, quod & in u vocalem tranſmigret in Aufero, aufugio, & (ni malè autumem) autumo, ab ϛοπμῶ, quod eſſet abtumo, ut ab εἰϛιμῶ eſtumo; cum v conſona id non reſpuat aliquando; ut Sylva ſylua. B in mediis vocibus ſequitur aliam b. ut obba; liquidas item, præter n; ut albus, imber, orbis. Quippe n tunc vertitur in m; ut imbibo, combibo. Initio non patitur poſt ſe niſi l & r; ut blandus, brutus: nam bdellium peregrina vox eſt. Admittit poſt ſe in fine s; ut Arabs, Libs. Servit in Dat. & Abl. pluralibus Nominum, & in Imperfectis Indicativi Verborum, item in Futuris primæ & ſecundæ, etiam in derivatorum formis nonnullis; ut flebilis, tenebræ, &c. à fleo, teneo.

C, c. Gr. Κ, κ. Heb. כ, & in fine vocum ך. Angl. C, c. Hebræis dicitur כף Kaph, i. vola manûs, Chaldæis כפא Kappa, unde à Græcis appellatur itidem Κάππα. C ergo ἰσοδύναμος τῷ κ, eique succen uriata ejus vicem universim sustinet. Sanè k utut antiquis frequentata, tandem obsolevit & in desuetudinem prorsus abiit, præterquàm in uno atque altero vocabulo; v. g. Kalendæ, quod & indifferenter Calendæ scribitur. Nimirum uti K à finali ך inversâ mutuata est figuram, ità C ex כ, inverso pariter semicirculo, efficta est. Nec malè, qui ex K, subtractâ columnâ & rotundato angulo, C formatam volunt; quod placuit Julio Scaligero: quod & in minusculâ c magis paret. Rectiùs tamen fortassis Josephus ex ך, cui in ordine Alphabetico respondet C, deduxit; angulo recto in henicyclum celeritate scribendi degenerante. Nempe b, c, d, pro β, γ, δ, tribus mediis, positæ sunt. Enimverò c ante bellum primum Punicum obtinuit pro g; quod ipsum columna Duiliana luculenter probat; ubi pro agnam acnam, pro legionem lecionem, pro effugiunt exfociont, &c. legere est. Quod ipsum & Ausonius affirmat, hoc versu; Prævaluit postquam Gammæ vice functa prius C. Unde etiamnum ex æquo Caius Cnæus vicesimus, & Gaius Gnæus vigesimus dicimus. Habet locum & alia conjectura: Nam & Σ Græcum non aliâ figurâ quàm C Latinum depictum erat in veterum monimentis; quod & Sigmatis ratio in ipsis Romanorum triclinii evicerit. Hinc factum, ut pro CYN, i. Σύν diceretur in compositione, mutatâ vocali v in obscurum o, CON; & in appositione, mutatâ consonâ n in cognatam m, CUM. At enim id nunc non ago, ut morem istum comprobatum eam, veteribus proculdubio ignotum, pronunciandi c ut s ante e, i, & y. Quippe cùm literæ altera alterius sibi potestatem assumant, magnam necesse est oriri confusionem. Quis enim hoc pacto distinguat inter cellam & sellam, cicer & siser? ut taceam de infinitis aliis. Et verò analogia postulat; ut quem sonum habet in fine vocis aliquod elementum, eundem retineat in incremento; e. g. haleo quod in fing. effertur ut halek, plurativè non aliter efferendum erat; haleces, scil. ut halekes, non autem haleses. Porrò veteres (quod monui) ita constanter fecisse tam certum est, quàm quod est certissimum; cum pro eo quod Latinè Cæsar, Cicero scribitur, Græcè Καῖσαρ, Κικέρων expresserint. Hoc saltem constat, literam c, undecunque hauserit figuram suam, potestatem ac vim τοῦ k acceptam referre; præsertim postquàm g in usu esse cœperat. Proinde quod κ γ χ sonant Græcis, id apud Latinos c g ch, quibus accensendum q, valebunt. Et de q quidem suo loco dicemus. Non eandem esse prorsus cum c, quod plurimi statuunt, hoc argumento est, quòd q se habeat ad ק similiter atque c ad כ. Nec illud prætereundum, q pro Græco κ adhiberi plerumque in vocibus Æolicè immutatis, antequàm Latinâ civitate donentur; ut τὶς quis, κόπτω κοπῶ coquo, ἵππος equus, &c. cum c in usitatis & communibus locum ferè habeat. Neque tamen negamus c & q in pauculis idem penè valere, ut cum & quum, cur & quur, &c. Nec hoc adeò mirum, cùm inter c & g idem commercium intercedat; quod superiùs observatum. Quid quòd prout in iis quæ Græcanicæ sunt originis c pro γ ponitur, ut ἀμοργή amurca, & vicissim g pro κ, ut κύκνος cygnus; ita in Latinis vocibus c & g sibi mutuas operas tradunt; ut à quatio percutio, ab incolo inquilinus. Verum hæc ἐυμεταβολίᾳ cognatione freta procedit. Habet & affinitatem c arctissimam cum alterius ordinis mutâ t, ut & complexu soveat sæpiusculè, dictum, factum, &c. & ubi ante i vocalem utraque sonat s, nescias utra utri præferenda sit; v. g. Patricius an Patritius scribi oporteat, quod & in aliis multis ejusdem formæ usu contingit, quorum diversa est scriptio, similis pronunciatio. Ut finem aliquando faciam; in numeris C, cùm sit prima Centenarii litera, valet 100, uti M pro Mille, 1000.
